"You only build once". It is normally the case that one plans and constructs a building to last a lifetime. Our shared objective is to provide quality for generations.

The above is the mission statement from Anton Steiningger GmbH, a medium-sized construction company located in Neunburg vorm Wald, Germany. With over 75 years of experience in the construction industry, Anton Steiningger GmbH is a seasoned company dedicated to providing a reliable service and high quality solutions focussed on the details and expectations of their customer's construction needs. Such a business philosophy naturally underlines the importance of quality in every department, for which each individual employee is responsible. In order to maintain and develop employee's professional skills and abilities, training sessions and seminars are held on a regular basis.

As a result of steady development in recent years, doors have been opened to new business sectors and the demand for specific training requirements has increased. In order to make the training programme more efficient and productive, technical presentation aids were required and Anton Steiningger (Company President) came across the WolfVision Visualizer. After intensive comparisons and product demonstrations, the general management opted for the VZ-9plus.

VZ-9plus: Portable and versatile!

Zooming in on fine details

Due to its ease of use and versatility, the Visualizer is now being used for various applications. Apart from the originally planned internal training sessions and meetings, the VZ-9plus has become an integral tool during meetings with architects, product presentations and R&D meetings, to name but a few.

An extremely valued feature is the zoom factor, especially when showing fine detail in plans and technical drawings. Preparation time for training sessions and meetings has been reduced as books, brochures and even models can be directly integrated.

A further useful feature is the built-in LCD preview monitor, as this enables the presenter to maintain concentration levels of all participants. On the whole, the Visualizer has created a completely new dimension during training sessions and meetings, as they are more interactive and effective than before.

"The Visualizer was certainly a worthwhile investment and has vastly improved our company training programme. Certain training sessions were sometimes put on the shelf due to complex preparations, but now we have the VZ-9plus this is no longer the case," emphasised Anton Steininger.
